Presentation by: Professor Oyeronke A. Odunola, Director, Research Management Office, U.I. and Leader, DRUSSA, U.I.

OBJECTIVES

Development of a viable and sustainable system linking aquaculture with rice and poultry production for resource poor farmers. To address problems of decrease in capture-fisheries, and reduction in rice and poultry production.

REGIONAL BENEFITS

Enhanced food production and improved techniques on integrated crop-aquaculture-livestock production systems up-scaled and out-scaled to three West and Central African countries (Nigeria, Cameroon and Sierra Leone)

BENEFICIARIES

300 Integrated rice-aquaculture cum livestock farmers out which 40% are women and youth.

IMPACT

Improved income and wellbeing of the rural fish farmers in the project areas.

OUTCOMES

I: Pond design for integration. Nigeria (A), Cameroon (B) and Sierra Leone (C). Fish pond treated with poultry waste (FP) and Rice field (R).

II. Selected farmer demonstration plots. (18 plots has been established in Nigeria, Cameroun and Sierra Leone)

III. Participants at selected training workshops. (1,494 farmers trained, 539 of which are women and youths).

CHALLENGES

- Implementation level and procurement rules not the same in project countries.
- Lack of capacity to produce critical inputs like fish seeds, smoking kiln etc. affecting implementation rate.

FURTHER WORK

- Continuation of training :farmers and youths, and manual publication.
- Distribution of 200,000 fish seeds and 200 improved CORAF/UI fish dehydrators (smoking kiln) to farmers.
- Establishment of 34 additional demonstration plots
- Implementation and signing of Memoranda of Agreement with Liberia, Cote d'Ivoire and Benin.
